Start Dreaming In Another Language

Why learn German? Why learn a language in general? The answer is that German isn’t just a language. When people think “language,” they think hours of cramming for a final exam, barely passing and then forgetting all the information the next day. A language isn’t a course you have to take for high school credit or a big test. A language is a dream. A language is a hope. It is the way people share their plans and passions. A language is something to be treasured. Learning a language is a way to take a step forward. Learning a language is a way to separate yourselves from the average people. A language puts you on the path to become a world citizen, a person who solves problems not just for the good of their own country, but for the good of the world. Its accepting that its not just our own country first, but the world first. A language is an adventure, there are ups and downs in learning certain aspects, but if you love it and are willing to put in the work, it can make your dreams, and the dreams of the people around you, come true.

Why learn German when you could choose any other language? German is basically the most amazing, phenomenal language. It’s culture is deeply rooted.
